Sunnyside Newsletter

Happy Half term!

We've had a super final week at Sunnyside and our children have been so creative this week. During our virtual assembly this week we thought about the importance of being different – we know that the world would be a very boring place if we were all the same! We are all individual and unique!

#HelloYellow
YOUNG MINDS

Thank you for supporting our #HelloYellow day on Friday. We managed to collect £119 to send to Young Minds to support children's mental health. More importantly we managed to raise awareness of mental health in school and we had some excellent discussions about strategies to support positive mental health.

Don't forget to sign up for a Parent/Teacher telephone appointment during our first week back after half term. If you haven't received a text link to your phone please call the school office.

Teachers cannot wait to talk to you to share your child's successes this half term.

Does your child have access to WIFI and a tablet/laptop/device at home?

In readiness for any classes needing to self-isolate, we will need to ensure that all children have access to appropriate resources. Previously this week we sent our remote learning policy and a survey to collect ideas/thoughts regarding online learning and access. If you haven't already, please follow the link attached in this email to complete the survey.

Year 3 and 4 children have really enjoyed learning about the Aztecs and this week they have created their own Chinampas using clay.

Dragons

Year 1 and 2 children enjoyed making dragons out of clay too – how creative! Look at how scary some of these dragon models are!

We had some very special visitors come to talk to our year 6 children today about online learning and the children confidently shared with them their love of the online programs we are using in year 6 called 'Reading Plus' and 'Learning by Questions'. We are super proud of how confidently and enthusiastically they shared their thoughts and ideas. Well done!

Over the half term holidays we have something very exciting happening in EYFS..... watch out on twitter as Miss Hall will keep you all updated with photographs!

Attendance Winners – Our winners for w/c 12th October are Sycamore with a fantastic 99.1%.

Well done everyone.
